WHARTON BARKER, the best known member of the bankrupt house of Barker Bros. & Co., has taken an active interest in politics. He is the owner of The American, a weekly journal of literature and politics published in Philadelphia which fights Quay and in the late campaign supported Pattison. When Garfield was elected Mr. Barker desired to be made Secretary of the Treasury, but Wayne Mac Veagh was made Attorney General and Mr. Barker was left out.

THERE is an opinion prevailing among well posted people, army officers in par-ticular, that a general uprising of the Indians, which is seriously threatened could have but one result, aside from the possible massacre of many settlers in the west, and that would be the extermina tion of the uncivilized portion of the Indian race. This would nut an end to Indian wars and go a great ways toward the final settlement of a question which has been a buy-bear to our statesmen for

The Standard and the Oll Business. The oldest and most expert men in the business know no reason for the heavy decline in oil, except that the Standard has the power and is using it. This is reason enough so far as the practical results to the consumer are con

It is an interesting phase of the busi ness that the declining market and all other manifestations of the Standard's absolute control of the business do not prevent men from sailing in to seek their fortune. The Standard may do what it pleases with the market, and still mony is ready to embark in the wildest of wildest ventures.

Every electric wire that stretches its length along the street should be buried out of sight and out of danger, if this can be. Experts ere at work on the problem, but it is too much to say that it is already solved. Progress has been made, but apparently more remains to be made before it will be expedient or fair to order that all wires shall be placed immediately under ground.

By order of Council the City Solicitor has prepared an ordinance providing that the wires shall be put underground. Before such a measure can properly be advanced towards its passage Council should inquire very fully into the mat ter. It should know what has been attempted and what accomplished elsetempted and what accomplished else-where, how far any sub-way system is a partial accompanied by the sub-way system is a rested. The H. & O. Torminals. The sudden giving way of the bridge in the Baltimore & Ohio station is no surprise. The structure has long been considered unsafe and should have been replaced long since. Fortunately the rickety old thing went down when there were no crowded passenger cars to go down with it, or this morning's newspapers would be telling a harrowing tale to the great business which Wheeling furnishes to the road. The accommoda tions should be sightly. They must be safe. A solution of the Baltimore & Ohio's Wheeling terminal problem is not surrounded by difficulties insurmountable. What the company owns in connection with what the people will grant under satisfactory assurances will provide such terminal facilities as will meet the requirements of the road and the reasonable expectations of the

At the recent annual meeting of the stockholders they were advised that a new passenger station for Wheeling is in contemplation as part of the work of the ensuing year. This contemplation should include the general system of improvement which the road owes to itself and its patrons at this point.
